

Coradine Releases LogTen Mobile for iPhone

Bringing critical information for pilots to the iPhone and iPod Touch

Portland, OR USA – January 08, 2008 – Coradine Aviation Systems, in an exciting partnership with ForeFlight today released a major new service for users of Apple’s iPhone and iPod Touch: LogTen Mobile. LogTen Mobile provides seamless integration with Coradine’s pilot logbook software, LogTen Pro, allowing pilots to keep their logbook up to date as well as monitor currency requirements, duty limits, and certificate status all on their iPhone! The system leverages web technologies to deliver unprecedented ease of use and allows users to sync their data with an iPhone or iPod Touch wirelessly - without ever having to plug it in.

ForeFlight co-founder Jason Miller, said, "Coradine and ForeFlight have a common philosophy of creating fast, elegant, and intuitive software for pilots. LogTen Mobile is representative of this shared philosophy. LogTen Pro downloads new entries from LogTen Mobile and uploads logbook stats without you having to think about the process, plug in cables, or proactively start a two-way synchronization process."

Innovative new features include: Quickly check currency, duty limits, and certificate status; add new flights; sync wirelessly and effortlessly with LogTen Pro 4, all with your iPhone or iPod Touch.

Noah Lieberman, President of Coradine said "Since 2004, when we launched the first Mac based Pilot Logbook software, LogTen Pro has given Pilots using the Apple Mac the ability to digitally manage their flight time, giving them a lot more control and easier access to their data. Now with LogTen Mobile and LogTen Pro 4.0, we’re very excited to be partnering with the leading vendor of aviation products for the iPhone to put the critical information pilots need every day, right in their pocket."
